NEWSPAPER PLANT IS BLOWN UP AND NINETEEN KILLED

work to explode at 1 o'clock in the morning, the same hour at which the explosion occurred in the Times office. The bomb was first discovered at the Zeehandelaar home by a servant who called an officer. Had not some part of the mechanism failed to work the house would probably have been demolished and its inmates killed.

Only two arrests were made and there is little indication of complicity on the part of the prisoners. The president of the local Typographical Union issued orders that union printers may work in conjunction with the non-union printers of the Times in any of the local newspaper offices in setting up copy for the Times. This was announced after a consultation of the union men and the managers of the old newspapers.

Big Reward Offered.
The city council, in special sessions today, appropriated $425,000 for the purpose of determining the cause of the explosion and provides a reward of $42,500 for the capture of those responsible for the outrage.

The death list of the Times disaster, which occurred this morning totals nineteen. There are nine missing, whose bodies probably lie in the still smoking ruins of the Times building.

In addition there are about twenty injured, some of whom may die.

The original suspicion of the police that the Times building disaster was due to a heavy charge of high explosives, was circumstantially confirmed by the finding of the bombs and the statements of those persons in the buildings nearby at the time of the explosion. It is also almost certain that the explosion occurred in a narrow alley that separated the two buildings occupied by the Times.

Foreman Graybill of the composing room, in which the full force of the explosion was felt and where the greatest direct damage was done, is firmly of the opinion that it was due to dynamite in the alley.

He said:

"I was standing near the center of the composing room when all at once a terrific force from below seemed to raise a section of the floor. The upheaval came between two linotype machines. Frames and broken timbers flew in all directions. The force of the explosion was indescribable. Grant Moore, a machinist, was wrenched over the spot when the compact came through the floor. His body was hurled against the ceiling. E. A. Jordan, a head setter, and E. W. Passon, a galley man, were nearest to him and they, too, were hurled against the ceiling of the composing room.

"Everyone of the typesetting machines were thrown and hurled in all directions."
